

Jill Ingrassia,

Managing Director, Government Relations and Traffic Safety Advocacy
AAA and Chairperson of the ITS America Board of Directors
Washington, DC

As Managing Director of AAA's Government Relations and Traffic Safety Advocacy department, Jill directs federal and state government relations and traffic safety advocacy, policy and programs for AAA. She manages a staff of policy and public health professionals and oversees the development and implementation of public policy strategy of concern to AAA members and AAA business operations, including mobility and transportation safety, energy, and consumer automotive issues.

Throughout her 19 years with AAA, Jill has worked on a number of comprehensive initiatives to address distracted driving, improve child passenger, teen and senior driver safety, and advocate for transportation funding. She has represented AAA on a number of coalitions with national transportation and safety organizations, including current service as Chairman of the ITS America Board of Directors, membership on the Transportation Safety Advancement Group, and 2008 Chairman of The Road Gang, an affiliation of transportation professionals based in Washington, DC.

Before joining AAA, Ingrassia worked as legislative assistant to former Governor and U.S. Senator Jim Exon of Nebraska. She holds a B.A. from Nebraska Wesleyan University in Spanish and Global Studies.